

Sha-lom ah-lay-chem

Join us and sing out Let each Shabbat bring about strength from all that we've known.

Turn from daily earning,
take some time for learning,
use this day for friends and family.
Shabbat binds us, serves us and
reminds us of the values
we've shared through history.

with Rabbi Peter Schweitzer

Sha-lom ah-lay-chem

Welcome and treasure things that bring us pleasure
for now our work week is done!

Turn from daily earning,
take some time for learning,
use this day for friends and family.
Shabbat binds us, serves us and
reminds us of the values
we've shared through history.

O come, my friend
let us sing our song with joy
and greet Shabbat a time of peace.
Let us sing our song with joy
and greet Shabbat a time of peace.

We forget our cares and we turn aside from worries that ache our heart.
We heal and renew our tired souls
and give ourselves a fresh new start.

O come, my friend
let us sing our song with joy
and greet Shabbat a time of peace.
Let us sing our song with joy
and greet Shabbat a time of peace.

Blessing Over Children

It is a custom on Shabbat for parents to bless their children by wishing that they will emulate the virtues of legendary ancient ancestors. Our hope is that our children will discover themselves and their own unique personality.

We are thankful and grateful for the gift of children.
May they be blessed in their innocence.
May they be blessed in their curiosity.
May they be blessed in their individuality.
And may they be blessed by our love.

FOR ALL THESE GIFTS

Blessed is this place and all who are assembled here. Blessed are those who join in this celebration of life. We honor the Shabbat, a day of rest and peace, of rejoicing and celebrating.

We rejoice in the gift of life, the gift of wine, the gift of bread, and the gift of community, which have sustained us in life, strengthened us in life, secured us in life, and enabled us to reach this day of joy, contentment and peace.

Shabbat Shalom! Gut Shabbes!

Shabbat is a Time for Singing

Songs may be sung at anytime during the Shabbat gathering. At the start. In the middle. And at the end. Enjoy!
